- Exhibit G -

Major Checkpoints

	Will notice effectively reach the class? The percentage of the class that will be exposed to a notice based on a proposed notice plan can always be calculated by experts. A high percentage (e.g., between 70–95%) can often reasonably be reached by a notice campaign.
	Will the notices come to the attention of the class? Notices should be designed using page-layout techniques (e.g., headlines) to command class members' attention when the notices arrive in the mail or appear on the Internet or in printed media.
	Are the notices informative and easy to understand? Notices should carry all of the information required by Rule 23 and should be written in clear, concise, easily understood language.
	Are all of the rights and options easy to act upon? There should be no unnecessary hurdles that make it difficult for class members to exercise their rights to opt out, object, submit a claim, or make an appearance.
Bef	fore Certification/Preliminary Settlement Approval
	Can any manageability problems from notice issues be overcome? Consider potential problems in reaching and communicating with class members—e.g., language barriers, class size, geographic scope—and whether a notice plan will be able to overcome such problems.
	Can a high percentage of the proposed class be reached (i.e., exposed to a notice)? Consider the breakdown of known and unknown class members, the age of any mailing lists, and the parties' willingness to spend necessary funds to fully reach the class.
	Is it economically viable to adequately notify the class? If the cost to reach and inform a high percentage of the class is not justified by a proposed settlement, an opt-out class may not be appropriate. Inability to support proper notice may also be evidence that the settlement is weak.
	Will unknown class members understand that they are included? If a well-written notice will leave class members in doubt as to whether they are included, consider whether the class definition, or the class certification, is appropriate.
Up	on Certification/Preliminary Settlement Approval
	Do you have a "best practicable" notice plan from a qualified professional? A proper notice plan should spell out how notice will be accomplished, and why the proposed methods were selected. If individual notice will not be used to reach everyone, be careful to obtain a first-hand detailed report explaining why not. See "Notice Plan" section below.

	Do you have unbiased evidence supporting the plan's adequacy? Be careful if the notice plan was developed by a vendor who submitted a incentives to cut corners or cover up any gaps in the notice program. In a practicable, notice as Rule 23 requires, your own expert report may be a especially true in the diminished adversarial posture in which settlement also true at preliminary approval, before outsiders are aware of the propitiself may limit the parties, awareness, in turn impacting your final approximation.	order to find the "best dvisable. - Will the parties search for and use all names and addresses they have in their files? If the parties suggest that mailings are impracticable, look to distinguish between truly unreasonable searches (e.g., the defendant has nuggets of data that could be matched with third-party lists by a new computer program and several man-years) and situations where a search would be difficult but not unreasonably burdensome (e.g., lists reside directly in the defendant's records but are outdated or expensive to mail to because of the volume). Rule 23 generally requires the latter.
- Will outdated addresses be updated before mailing? The plan should detail steps to update addresses before mailing, including postal service change-of-address records, and third-party address databases if the list is very old. Watch out for potentially ineffective "last known address" mailings.
- Has the accuracy of the mailing list been estimated after updating efforts? Look for information that indicates how accurate the mailing addresses will be after the planned address updating effort.
- Has the percentage of the class to be reached by mail been calculated? The parties should be able to indicate how great a percentage of the overall class will be reached by individual notice, so that the extent of any necessary additional notice can be determined.
- Are there plans to re-mail notices that are returned as undeliverable? Even after updating addresses before mailing, mail will be returned as undeliverable. Further lookup tactics and sources are often available, and it is reasonable to re-mail these notices.
- Will e-mailed notice be used instead of postal mailings? If available, parties should use postal mailing addresses, which are generally more effective than e-mail in reaching class members: mail-forwarding services reach movers, and the influx of "SPAM" e-mail messages can cause valid e-mails to go unread. If e-mail will be used—e.g., to active e-mail addresses the defendant currently uses to communicate with class members—be careful to require sophisticated design of the subject line, the sender, and the body of the message, to overcome SPAM filters and ensure readership.
- Will publication efforts combined with mailings reach a high percentage of the class? The lynchpin in an objective determination of the adequacy of a proposed notice effort is whether all the notice efforts together will reach a high percentage of the class. It is reasonable to reach between 70-95%. A study of recent published decisions showed that the median reach calculation on approved notice plans was 87%.
- Are the reach calculations based on accepted methodology? An affiant's qualifications are important here. Reach calculation methodology is commonly practiced in advertising and media-planning disciplines. Claims administrators are often accountants by training and may lack personal knowledge or the training to conduct reach analyses.
 - O Is the net reach calculation thorough, conservative, and not inflated? Circulation figures for separate dissemination methods cannot simply be added to determine reach. Total audience must be calculated for each publication and the net must be calculated for a combination of publications. Be sure the reach calculation removes overlap between those people exposed to two or more dissemination methods (e.g., a person who receives a mailing may also be exposed to the notice in a publication).

	3	Watch for estimated reach calculations that are based in part on speculative notice that might occur, e.g., news coverage about the lawsuit or settlement. Often, these news articles do not ultimately explain class members' rights, and the content is not in the court's control.
	•	Is any Internet advertising being measured properly? Audiences of Internet websites are measured by "impressions." Total, or "gross," impressions of the entire website do not reveal how many people will view the notice "ad" appearing periodically on a particular page. Inflated audience data via Internet ads is common. It is very expensive to reach a significant percentage of a mass audience with Internet banner ads. Watch for suggestions that Internet ads and social network usage can replace all other methods. Reach, awareness, and claims will likely be very low when such a program is complete.
	Con ano guio	on-English notice necessary? sider the demographics of the class to determine whether notice is necessary in Spanish or ther language. The number of class members whose native language is not English should be you on whether to actively disseminate notice in other languages, or to simply make foreign guage notices available at a website.
	Clas nece allo	es the notice plan allow enough time to act on rights after notice exposure? Is members need time to receive a notice by mail or in a publication. A minimum of 30 days is essary from completed dissemination before deadlines, with 60–90 days preferred. This was for re-mailings, fulfillment of requests for more information, and consideration of rights options.
	Class and follo com cert Oth	I key documents be available at a neutral website? s members should have access to information beyond the notice. Besides the summary notice detailed notice (following the FJC examples at www.fjc.gov), it is reasonable to post the owing documents at a neutral administrator's website dedicated to the case: the plaintiffs' aplaint, the defendants' answer, your class-certification decision (in the event of a class ified for trial), and the settlement agreement and claim form (in the event of a settlement). er orders, such as your rulings on motions to dismiss or for summary judgment, should narily be made available as well.
	Eve an i	the class get answers from a trained administrator or from class counsel? In the best notice will generate questions from class members. A toll-free number call center, interactive website staffed by trained administrators, and class counsel who are accessible to people they represent are reasonable steps to help class members make informed decisions.
Not	tice	Documents (also see Plain Language Notice Guide, below)
	Before info noti	bre you approved all of the forms of the notices? One authorizing the parties to begin disseminating notices, you should ask for and approve all his of notice that will be used. This includes a detailed notice; a summary notice; and rmation that will appear at the website and in any other form, such as an Internet banner, TV ce, and radio notice. See www.fjc.gov for illustrative notice forms for various cases. It is best ee and approve the forms of notice the way they will be disseminated, in their actual sizes and gns.

	The Guid Witl	the notices designed to come to the attention of the class? FJC's illustrative notices, as also described in the accompanying "Plain Language Notice de," explain how to be sure the notices are "noticed" by the casual-reading class member. In "junk mail" on the rise, and the clutter of advertising in publications, legal notices must ad out with design features long-known to communications pros.
	•	Does the outside of the mailing avoid a "junk mail" appearance? Notices can be discarded unopened by class members who think the notices are junk mail. A good notice starts with the envelope design, examples of which are at www.fjc.gov.
	•	Do the notices stand out as important, relevant, and reader-friendly? It is important to capture attention with a prominent headline (like a newspaper article does). This signals who should read the notice and why it is important. The overall layout of the notice will dictate whether busy class members will take time to read the notice and learn of their rights.
	Req	the notices written in clear, concise, easily understood language? uired by Rule 23 since 2003, it is also simply good practice to recognize that communicating I information to laypeople is hard to do.
	dec Con that	the notices contain sufficient information for a class member to make an informed ision? sider the amount of information provided in the notice. Watch for omission of information the lawyers may wish to obscure (such as the fee request) but that affects class members etheless.
	Sum noti But noti	the notices include the Rule 23 elements? Even the summary notice? Imary notices, whether mailed or published, encourage readership, and the FJC illustrative ces show that even summary notices can include all elements required by Rule 23(c)(2)(B). an overly short summary notice, one that mostly points interested readers to a detailed ce, can result in most class members (who read only the summary notice) being unaware of c rights.
	Dep	e the parties used or considered using graphics in the notices? ending on the class definition or the claims in the case, a picture or diagram may help class identify as members, or otherwise determine whether they are included.
	It is noti they	tempting to include "everything but the kitchen sink" in the detailed notice. Although dense ces may appear to provide a stronger binding effect by disclosing all possible information, may actually reduce effectiveness. When excess information is included, reader burnout alts, the information is not communicated at all, and claims are largely deterred.
	The have	re notice in "Q&A" format? Are key topics included in logical order? FJC illustrative notices take the form of answers to common questions that class members in class action cases. This format, and a logical ordering of the important topics (taking care include all relevant topics) makes for a better communication with the class.
	Wat	there no burdensome hurdles in the way of responding and exercising rights? such for notice language that restricts the free exercise of rights, such as onerous requirements ubmit a "satisfactory" objection or opt-out request.

_	Is the size of the notice sufficient? Consider the balance between cost efficiency and effectiveness. A smaller publication notice will save money, but too small and it will not afford room for a noticeable headline, will not fit necessary information, and will not be readable if using fine print.
Cla	ims Process
	Is a claims process actually necessary? In too many cases, the parties may negotiate a claims process which serves as a choke on the total amount paid to class members. When the defendant already holds information that would allow at least some claims to be paid automatically, those claims should be paid directly without requiring claim forms.
	Does the claims process avoid steps that deliberately filter valid claims? Close attention to the nature of a necessary claims process may help eliminate onerous features that reduce claims by making claiming more inconvenient.
	Are the claim form questions reasonable, and are the proofs sought readily available to the class member? Watch for situations where class members are required to produce documents or proof that they are unlikely to have access to or to have retained. A low claims rate resulting from such unreasonable requirements may mean that your eventual fairness decision will overstate the value of the settlement to the class and give plaintiff attorneys credit for a greater class benefit than actually achieved.
	Is the claim form as short as possible? A long, daunting claim form is more likely to be discarded or put aside and forgotten by recipients. Avoid replicating notice language or injecting legalistic terminology into the claim form which will deter response and confuse class members.
	Is the claim form well-designed with clear and prominent information? Consider whether the claim form has simple, clearly worded instructions and questions, all presented in an inviting design. The deadlines and phone numbers for questions should be prominent.
	Have you considered adding an online submission option to increase claims? As with many things, convenience is of utmost importance when it comes to claims rates. Today, many class members expect the convenience of one-click submission of claims. Technology allows it, even including an electronic signature. Claim forms should also be sent with the notice, or published in a notice, because many will find immediate response more convenient than going to a website.
	Have you appointed a qualified firm to process the claims? You will want to be sure that the claims administrator will perform all "best practice" functions and has not sacrificed quality in order to provide a low price to win the administration business.

Case 4:15-cv-06314-YGR Document 174-7 Filed 01/16/18 Page 8 of 11

	Are there sufficient safeguards in place to deter waste, fraud, and/or abuse? The claims process, the claim form itself, and the claims administrator all play roles in ensuring that approved claims are valid claims, so that payments go to class members who meet the criteria. Closely monitoring the process, perhaps through a special master—or at least by requiring the parties to file full reports of claims made—is a good idea.
Aft	er Notice/Before Trial or Final Settlement Approval
	Did the notice plan achieve what it promised? Look for evidence that the notice plan reached the class members as well as anticipated.
	What is the reaction of the class? You will want to look at the number and nature of any objections, as well as the number of optouts and claims. Special note: waiting for the claims deadline to expire before deciding on final approval ensures that you can look at a full picture of the fairness of the settlement. By so doing you will be able to judge the actual value of the settlement to the class and calculate attorney fees in relation to that value.
	Have you made sufficient findings in the record? Consider, based on the evidence, making detailed findings so as to inhibit appellate review or to withstand a subsequent collateral review of your judgment.
	Is any subsequent claims-only notice necessary? If you find the settlement fair, reasonable, and adequate, but the number of claims is low, you may consider additional notice to the class after final approval.

Detailed Notice—First Page

- Page one is an overall summary of the notice. The objective is to use the fewest words to say the most. It is a snapshot of the case, of the reasons for the notice, and of the rights that class members have.
- The court's name at the top conveys the importance of the notice.
- A headline in a large font captures attention. It conveys what the notice is about and who is included, and it suggests a benefit to reading the entire notice.
- The words in italics below the headline communicate the official nature of the notice and provide a contrast from a lawyer's solicitation. Be sure to avoid a traditional legalistic case caption.
- Short bullet points highlight the nature of the case and the purpose of the notice. Bullet points also communicate who is included, the benefits available (if it is a settlement), and steps to be taken—identifying deadlines to observe. The first page should pique class members' interest and encourage them to read the entire notice.
- The table of rights explains the options available. These are deliberately blunt. Be careful to avoid redundancy with the information inside the notice.
- The first page should prominently display a phone number, e-mail address, or website where the class can obtain answers to questions.
- If appropriate for the class, include a non-English (e.g., Spanish) language note about the availability of a copy of the notice in that language.

If you bought XYZ Corporation stock in 1999, you could get a payment from a class action settlement.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF STATE

A federal court authorized this notice. This is not a solicitation from a lawyer

- A settlement will provide $6,990,000 (17 ½ cents per share if claims are submitted for each share) to pay claims from investors who bought shares of XYZ Corporation stock during 1999.
- The settlement resolves a lawsuit over whether XYZ misled investors about its future earnings; it avoids costs and risks to you from continuing the lawsuit; pays money to investors like you; and releases XYZ from liability.
- Court-appointed lawyers for investors will ask the Court for up to $3,010,000 (7½ cents per share), to be paid separately by XYZ, as fees and expenses for investigating the facts, litigating the case, and negotiating the settlement.
- . The two sides disagree on how much money could have been won if investors won a trial
- Your legal rights are affected whether you act, or don't act. Read this notice carefully.

Your Legal Rights and Options in this Settlement:
SUBMIT A CLAIM FORM	The only way to get a payment.
Exclude Yourself	Get no payment. This is the only option that allows you to ever be part of any other lawsuit against XYZ, about the legal claims in this case.
Овјест	Write to the Court about why you don't like the settlement.
GO TO A HEARING	Ask to speak in Court about the fairness of the settlement.
Do Nothing	Get no payment. Give up rights.

- These rights and options—and the deadlines to exercise them—are explained in this notice
- The Court in charge of this case still has to decide whether to approve the settlement. Payments will be made if the Court approves the settlement and after appeals are resolved. Please be patient.

Detailed Notice—Table of Contents

- Organize the topics into different sections and place the information in a logical order.
- A "Q&A" or "Answers to Common Questions" format helps class members find the information that is important to their decision-making process.
- Customize the topics to the facts of the case, but keep the overall notice short: 8–11 pages should be plenty even for complex matters.
- Don't avoid obvious questions (or answers) that class members will have.

Detailed Notice—Inside Content

- Short answers are best. Be sure that the text answers the question being asked and does not "spin" the information in a way to achieve a desired result—e.g., do not use language that encourages class members to accept a proposed settlement.
- Watch for redundant and lengthy information, but also substantive omissions. Be frank and open for better reader comprehension and, as a result, a stronger binding effect.
- Every detail does not belong in the notice, but all rights and options do. Explain settlement benefits and state the fees that the lawyers will seek. Watch for burdensome requirements that might inhibit objections, opt outs, or claims.
- Use plain language. You may closely follow the illustrative models at www.fjc.gov.

Summary Notice

- The summary notice should be short but comprehensive. Refer to all of the requirements of Rule 23 in a simple and clear summary fashion. Follow the FJC models wherever possible.
- The "Legal Notice" banner at the top helps stop a publisher from typesetting the word "advertisement" at the top, which would create a perception that the notice is a solicitation. Do not use the legal case caption style.
- The headline in large font captures the attention of readers who glance at the page. It flags what the notice is about, who is included, and it signals a benefit to be derived by reading the notice.
- The initial paragraphs provide a snapshot of all key information.
- Be sure to explain class membership in a simple way. Consider a graphic to help readers understand that they are included.
- Make a brief but clear reference to the substance of the case and the claims involved.
- Identify clearly what class members could get and how they would get it. These are the most common questions from class members.

Outside of Mailing

- Design the notice to make it distinguishable from "junk mail."
- A reference to the court's name (at the administrator's address) ensures that the class recognizes the notice's legitimacy.
- "Call-outs" on the front and back encourage the recipient to open and read the notice when it arrives with other mail.

Cover Letter (when compliance with PSLRA is needed)

- Identify the court's administrator as the sender—this conveys legitimacy.
- The content should be very short. Remember that this is not the notice.
- A reference in bold type to the security involved flags the relevance of the letter.
- The bullet points track each PSLRA cover letter requirement. Avoid lengthy explanations that are redundant with the notice. Be blunt for clarity.
- The content in the FJC's PSLRA cover letter can simply be customized for the case at hand. The design encourages interest, reading, and action.
